EL burglars are top of the charts

Crime stats show affluent suburbs targeted

By ASANDA NIN
Senior Reporter

BURGLARIES in East London's suburban homes are the highest in the province, and that is official. This was revealed in the Bhisio legislature by provincial commissioner Lieutenant-General Liziv Ntshinga and her team this week.

The statistics of an average of almost three burglaries a day, were recorded by the Cambridge police station, which serves most of the city's affluent suburbs, according to Ntshinga's team.

The station serves Vincent, Nahoon, Stirling, Berea, Bunkers Hill, Seiborne and Dorchester Heights.

The provincial police said there were 971 residential burglaries reported from April last year to March

This year, the Dispatch has been reporting allegations from homeowners and security firms about complicated syndicates that have been targeting these areas.

This is an average of more than 80 reported cases a month.

Ntshinga was reporting to the Bhishu legislature's safety and liaison portfolio committee meeting on Tuesday for the first time since taking office late last year.

The information was revealed in a top-level "crime situational analysis report" presented to the committee chaired by ANC MP, Michael Peter.

He said police's head of crime strategy, Brigadier Andro

Other burglary hotspots were in the areas served by the East London police station, and stations in Grahamstown, Bethelsdorp, King William's Town, Mdantsane, Kwazakhele, Humewood, Mthatha, Mount Road and Duncan Village, said Krause.

For reported murder cases, Mithatha Police Station which recorded 127 cases in the period is followed closely by Lusikisi

Bethelsdorp, Kwazakhele, New Brighton, Willowvale, Libode, Ngcobo, Centane, Gelvandale and Ngqeleni, all with 73 reports

If that was not enough, the police station also has the dubious distinction of recording the highest number of reported rape cases each.

A few years ago, Mithatha was unveiled as the "murder capital" of the province.

Krause also said a total of 1
